The Lower Cape Fear area of North Carolina brings to mind live oaks, salt marshes and tidal creeks - just a few of the things you'll discover on this workshop. Southern charm lives in Southport and surrounding towns. Join Jamie Konarski Davidson and Mark Hilliard on a guided exploration of this incredible region that includes unique subjects tucked in wonderful places.

We'll ferry over to Bald Head Island (the only way to get there) and capture images of the island habitats - maritime forest, freshwater lagoons, shorelines and critters within. Of course, the visit wouldn't be complete without seeing "Old Baldy."

Switch gears and discover the world of carnivorous plants, wildflowers and fern within the Green Swamp Preserve, and feel the magic of the longleaf pine savanna. From sunrise to sunset, you'll be able to capture scenes and create compelling compositions. The workshop includes in-the-field and classroom instruction. So, you'll refine your vision in the camera and in post processing.

The Lower Cape Fear region of North Carolina offers diversity beyond the imagination. On this workshop we'll explore maritime forest, marshes, shorelines and a magical swamp to discover some of its gems.

*Pack an open mind,
and prepare for a weekend

During this workshop you'll get a taste of Southern charm and have plenty of time to explore and photograph at an unhurried, relaxed pace that will allow you to capture a sense of place, learn how to capture your subjects creatively and effectively through lens choice, controlling the light and composing for impact. Landscapes, scenics, intimate vignettes and macro opportunities abound. If you're an infrared shooter (or would like to be), our locations are primo for shooting in color and IR. (Loaner cameras available)

The excursions are physically low-impact, with limited walking over fairly level ground. At times, however, you may find yourself on the ground, bending & twisting to get the right angle for your shot. Other locations include Oak Island and some surprises. Classroom sessions help you move post-processing to a new level and provide opportunity for image sharing and critiques.

This promises to be an extra special excursion and workshop. The locations we'll be visiting are incredibly rich with unique photographic opportunities, and the fun you'll have discovering what sparks your interest will abound.

Our workshops provide plenty of time for one-on-one attention to help you make your gear work FOR you, refine your techniques and expand your "seeing" skills. Locations are rich with possibility for landscape, abstract and macro, as well as for learning and practicing long exposures. Experience this wonderful part of the North Carolina coast with instructors who know where to go and openly share.
